CASE

1. Chandra sues Martin for breach of contract. Both parties have completed discovery. Chandra now wants her attorney to file a motion to have the judge rule in her favor without having to proceed further. Chandra does not know whether the motion to dismiss or the motion for a summary judgment is proper. Which motion is proper and why?

ANS:

The motion for a summary judgment is appropriate for where the parties are in their lawsuit. The purpose of the motion is to test the sufficiency of the facts alleged in the pleadings. The proper motion therefore, is one for summary judgment.

2. Billy has a dispute with Bump and Tumble Bedspring Company over a bed Billy recently purchased from Bump and Tumble for use in his hotel. Billy needs to decide whether to pursue litigation or employ an alternative dispute resolution mechanism. What advantages are associated most often with using alternative dispute resolution mechanisms? Which choice would be most appropriate in this case?

ANS:

The most-often-cited advantages are the expenses associated with litigation and the length of court actions. Arbitration might be the best approach; it has a long history of success in the field of commercial contracts.
